“I have fought the good fight. I have finished the race. I have kept the faith.” 2 Timothy 4:7. Beth's cancer did not define her. Her endurance through it and her faith in a good, good God, sustained her in her race until she reached the finish line. Her faith was strong. Two days before she walked into her Father's outstretched arms in Heaven, I looked into her eyes and told her, "God loves you." and despite her weakness, she smiled a huge smile. She knew how precious she was to her Heavenly Daddy and it made her smile. Beth's only voiced concern to me many months ago, was that she wanted to see her children grow up. Her incredible love for her children Abigayle and Joseph, who both made her heart so very happy and full, and for her faithful rock of a husband John, lives on. Beth is more alive today than she's ever been. She will be so, so missed on earth. But Abby and Joseph---your mom will greet you again one day! This is the Blessed Hope we have because of what Jesus did for her, for you, for all of us who believe in Him and place our trust in Jesus. Your Mom unwaveringly kept the faith. And that was her greatest desire for you too. To grow up strong in the faith and to follow your Savior both here on earth and one day in the future into Heaven too, to be reunited as a Forever Family again for ever and ever.
