“ Dad,

My birth-father was a stranger and I didn't know him all that well. But you were the one who took me under your wing and raised me. You were the one who taught me right from wrong. You were the one who taught me about life, including the many tough lessons it has. I thank you.

I loved calling you and taking you by surprise with my dry humor. On many occasions, you would comment that you never knew if I was joking or not until after I was through delivering the punch line. I loved hearing your laughter after telling you the Poker Game Story. I will always remember your reaction to the Bus Story. The Wine Story reaction was also fun and will be remembered fondly. The last one I told you was the Seattle Zoo story, where they were forced to reopen after hundreds of Flamingos put their foot down. Calling you up, getting you to laugh, talking about the weeks or months events, that was fun and which will be missed.

You raised a wonderful family of which I was a part of. I thank you Dad, for all you have done.

Until we meet again!

Your son,
